

The 19th International Conference of the Jewish Law Association

Impact of Technology, Science and Knowledge on Jewish Law and Ethics

Tel Aviv University, Israel 11-13 July, 2016

Impact of Technology, Science and Knowledge on Jewish Law and Ethics

Though the interaction between Jewish law, technology, and science is not novel, in recent centuries this interaction has intensified. Jewish law has been challenged, developed, and transformed under the sway of new developments in the fields of bio- and nano-technology and computer science and new research in the fields of digital and communication studies, the social sciences (e.g. psychology, sociology) and the humanities (e.g. philology, archeology). These developments pose new challenges for regulating behavior and for law in general. (For example, the growth of knowledge raises questions regarding the current nature of knowledge and authority and transforms the nature of the legal corpus and of rabbinic authority.)

THE CONFERENCE WILL INCLUDE OF-TOPIC AND ON-TOPIC SESSIONS, A NEW BOOKS SESSION AND OTHER EVENTS.

Having read all proposals, we're excited to share that it looks to be an invigorating, interesting and challenging conference. The conference program has a strong thematic emphasis, and presenters will present cutting-edge research regarding the impacts of technology, science and knowledge on Jewish law and ethics in a variety of fields. In addition to the thematic presentations there will also be a broad variety of more general, Jewish legal research sessions. We will also have a number of special sessions, time to socialize and network, discuss and hopefully some surprises.

Topics will Include:

- Post-humanism: Jewish Law on Bionic body parts, synthetic biology, technologically mediated sensations (cameras, loud speakers, virtual reality), and futuristic science.
- Identity: the effect of biology and virtual reality.
- Science education: the effects of evolutionism, archeology, Biblical studies, etc.
- Autonomy: free will v. determinism in light of neuroscience and artificial intelligence.
- Social media and virtual/new communities, novel forms of communication and texts.
- Information Technologies: the effect of information retrieval systems etc.

Questions and fields can be combined. For example, one may ask whether causality in Jewish Law (grama and grami in religious law, torts and criminal law) has changed due to conceptual changes in physics, technological developments and/or new research in the social sciences.
